People live in the highlands for the beautiful countryside and fresh air. Several families with young children have moved to the highlands in recent years, these children should not be exposed to any such toxins which would be released into the water or atmosphere. There are much better locations for such a development to proceed, not anywhere near residential houses or the local township. Having such a development would be a huge detriment to the reputation of this beautiful area, not to mention the ongoing health risks to the community and therefore should not proceed.
