I think the development is totally inappropriate for the area - it is too close to the urban area and could have far-reaching health affects for people living in the area.

The development would likely also negatively affect the traffic and road network in the area which is already suffering congestion.

Such a development in a small regional and semi-rural area could only negatively impact the ambience and enjoyment of the area by the residents and visitors with health, visual and access impacts that will forever change the quaint nature of the Moss Vale area which is one of the highlights of the Southern Highlands.
