As a resident of the Southern Highlands, I strongly disagree with the proposed Plasrefine project. Our community prides itself on its natural beauty, clean air, and rich biodiversity, which are essential to both our lifestyle and local economy. Introducing a large-scale industrial operation like Plasrefine could compromise these values by increasing pollution, placing strain on local resources, and potentially threatening the delicate ecosystems we work hard to preserve. This proposal risks altering the unique character and environmental health of the Highlands, impacting not only residents but also the visitors drawn to our area for its pristine, unspoiled landscape.
