Water and air are precious commodities. A plastics recycling plant comes at what cost to our clean air and water?

There will be awful emissions both in the air and water.

We moved to the Southern Highlands 25 years ago to enjoy a healthier life both for our children and us.

Since moving here my husband and I have had no asthma with the clean air.

I am sure this will change in time with a recycling plant that is proposed to be built too close to us, and other industrial plants will surely come if this first one is approved.

I'm sure a plant of this size will need water and lots of it. I am convinced the water will become polluted and will flow into our beautiful waterways. Do we allow this to happen? and ruin our precious asset - water !

The waste from industry is growing and polluting our world and even though recycling is great in principle, I am sure mishaps will occur that will make more pollution than what will be removed by the plant.

If the manufacturers of goods used less plastics we would all benefit greatly.

Stringent checks and maintenance would need to be carried out regularly, but I am not convinced this will happen - we are always hearing of disasters happening when industrial plants fail.

Building a recycling plastics plant this close to towns and people is ridiculous.

The long term repercussions associated with this industry could significantly harm our natural resources and the health of local residents.

Recycling plastic is a wonderful thing, but not in the middle this lovely countryside where the watercourses supply Sydney and many local people.

When there is a fault in the plant (as surely will happen), the pollution will flow into the surrounding waterways or our air, potentially bringing ill health to a great many people.

I do not believe this plant has been properly designed and I fear for this environment.

Please do not allow this plastics recycling plant to be built here in Moss Vale
