I feel the size and location of the development will have an huge impact on the beautiful Southern Highlands and it's community. A picturesque rural area invaded by heavy vehicles, toxins from the plant released into the fresh country air, water contamination resulting in health issues as well as an eyesore to the rural landscape, can only cause property values to plummet, reduction in tourists, which in turn will affect retail, hotel and restaurant spending and ultimately a future mass exodus of residents.

A Plastic Refinery in the Southern Highlands is absolutely suicidal. I do not want to see a thriving region sacrificed for a future "ghost town".
