To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed Plasrefine project in Moss Vale, NSW. This project raises significant environmental, social, and economic concerns that cannot be overlooked.

First and foremost, the unavoidable negative environmental impact of this project is alarming. The risks of toxic emissions, groundwater contamination, and long-term damage to the surrounding ecosystems far outweigh any claimed benefits. Moss Vale is a region with a rich natural heritage, and this project threatens to undermine the environmental integrity of the area.

Such projects also disproportionately affect the health and well-being of local communities. Moss Vale residents deserve to live in a clean and safe environment, free from the fear of industrial pollution and associated health risks. As someone with aging parents and plans to raise children in this community, I am deeply concerned about the impact this development would have on our health and safety. This project would drive families like ours away, as we prioritize our physical well-being and quality of life.

Economically, the project's risks far outweigh any alleged benefits. The long-term costs of environmental degradation, health impacts, and inevitable property devaluation would ultimately burden the community rather than uplift it.

I urge decision-makers to reconsider this project, which defies the interests of all residents. Our community has consistently protested against it, not just this year, but in previous years when it was initially proposed. We rejected it then, and we reject it now. No means no, and no amount of waiting will change our stance.

Thank you for considering the community's concerns. I trust you will make a decision that truly reflects the best interests of Moss Vale residents and its unique environment.
