I have grown up in the Highlands and watched many developments go ahead. Many of which were approved without future planning and impact to the community. This particular site will impact and already busting at the seams community. Moss vale has absolutely no infrastructure to deal with extra traffic, more people trying to find housing, of which they will when the this facility opens and brings in new employees.

To tell people to limit their time outside because of toxins is completely ludicrous and already admitting liability into the future regards environment and health impacts.

This refinery will be the end of Berrima and Moss Vale and surrounding towns. The death of the Highlands will rest firmly on the shoulders of those who approve this death trap. The health of the community is firmly in the hands of the government, they must do the right thing.
