I STRONGLY OBJECT to this proposal going ahead, especially in the Southern Highlands. It beggars belief that a project that carries such significant risks - to both the local community, the broader community (including residents of Sydney) and the environment - could even be considered.

Tourism (and the economy of the southern highlands) will suffer.

Local amenity will suffer.

There will be pollution (traffic, noise, air, water etc).

The environment (and protected species) will suffer.

Our waterways (including those in the Sydney drinking water catchment) will suffer irreversible damage.

The Southern Highlands is NOT the right site for this proposed facility.
