My daughter and her family live in Moss Vale, 900m away from this proposed facility. Having heard about this and watched the report on A Current Affair, I am concerned for their welfare, especially my young grandson.

Kids deserve to inherit a better world, not be left with our messes to clean up. Yes we need to recycle, but we also need to reduce our reliance on plastics in the first place. The process of recycling plastic is full of risks - risks to our health from the microplastics emissions, and risks to our environment from the microplastics getting into our water & soil, and also the massive fire risk. A fire in this location would be catastrophic.

Our kids need to be protected from toxic chemicals which threaten their lives. There is so much cancer in the world already, and far too many young lives are cut short. Why would we want to risk increasing those numbers? How many lives is it acceptable to lose in the pursuit of profit?
