To the detriment if the general public, in the event of a serious fire there would certainly be catastrophic consequences. Our area is not served adequately enough by the three emergency services, fire, ambulance and police. Therefore, in the event of a serious accident/ fire where will emergency services be called from to assist?

Alone, local fire fighters would not be able to contain a hazardous fire. The ambulance service is already under considerable pressure to meet the communities needs from 000 calls, when we only have one small community hospital in Bowral. An additional volume of traffic attending any potential, critical incident at the plastic refinery would gridlock The Southern Highlands road system. Sadly, the additional toxic waste that could ensue from a hazardous incident would effect a large proportion of the entire community. Also, additional waste going into the river from a nasty, unwanted event would effect thousands locally and beyond.
