I object in the strongest terms to the proposed development. It is simply madness to consider situating a plastics refining facility in such a pretty, heritage, suburban area which has much of its business dependent on tourism. This is not a NIMBY objection but, by all common sense a ridiculous proposition when all factors are considered. Would we accommodate a nuclear generation or nuclear waste disposal in our area. Simply NO! There are plans to significantly increase residency in the area with resultant infrastructure implication and overloading this with an unknown foreign operation is stupidity 101. If such a facility is warranted undertake a detailed study of all options and liaise with communities before ramming such a proposal down our throats. Are there any similar facilities elsewhere in the world and what have their impacts been. A bit of scientific analysis goes a long way to a better decision. Water run offs will impact on Sydney water supply. Surely we can learn from the recent mining disaster in Brazil.
